THE QUARTZ MILLS OF OWYHEE.

Mr. A. G. Bradford of this city has furnished us with the following list of mills running at Owyhee. Mr. B. is but lately returned from a tour through Owyhee:

The New York & Owyhee, 20 stamps, at East Ruby, on Poorman rock;

Grenzebach, 10 stamps, at Sinker creek on Poorman rock.

Moore & Fogus, 5 stamps, Silver City, on Oro Fino rock;

Vass Mill, 4 stamps, crushing custom rock; owned by Morse & Vass;

Lincoln mill, 20 stamps, on Oro Fino rock; a very fine mill, Holman & Balcomb, Superintendents. On the day Mr. Bradford visited this mill, it crushes 100 tons of Empire rock, a claim adjoining the Poorman;

Cosmos mill, 10 stamps, on Silver Legion rock, Dewey & Musgrave, Superintendents.

Webfoot & Shoonbar—in controversy—not running.

Minear mill, 5 stamps, Moore & Fogus, on Oro Fino rock;

Ainsworth mill, 10 stamps, on Surplus Oro Fino rock.

All the above mills except Web-foot & Shoonbar, are running day and night.

Moore & Fogus have a mill on the way to Flint District.

The South Extension of the Morning Star has been sold to Richards & McAlpin, eastern capitalists, who are bringing in four mills from Boise Basin.

The Trook & Jennings has been bonded to the same parties for $140,000, and work on it is progressing.

Mr. Bradford represents the Owyhee country as very lively. Besides the mills which are running on established claims and the extensive prospecting which is going on, employing many hundred men, the placers on Jordan creek and other streams are alive with hundreds of Chinamen who are averaging beyond wages from $3 to $4 per day. The whole country is being literally worked to the bed rock.

BRIGHAM ON THE RAMPAGE.

Let it go upon the record that day before yesterday, the 5th of August, 1866, in the Tabernacle in this city, Brigham Young said:

"I have lots, and plenty of them, but not more than I want, and if any man jumps any of them, I will send him to hell, so help me God."

Some of the lots alluded to are said to include vacant land which the Government owns and is keeping for the use of the citizens. These citizens are every day arriving in this Territory, and under the laws of the country they will occupy vacant Government land, as they need it, and if any one is "sent to hell," it will be known who did the deed.

GENERAL SHERIDAN'S VIEWS.—Some of the Copperhead papers, exulting over the late fearful massacre at New Orleans, seem disappointed to think that General Phil. Sheridan is a supporter of "my policy." The facts, so far as reported by telegraph, do not support this idea. But, this New Orleans affair aside, let us see what General Sheridan's views in regard to the "reconstructed" really are. A correspondent of the Cincinnati Commercial, who recently had an interview with him, reports that he expressed himself as follows:

"He said there was an undoubted change for the worse in the attitude of the South within the last six months, and bad symptoms appeared to be increasing. It now looked as if these infatuated people were about once more to precipitate their own misfortune. Nothing could have been more considerate than the disposition of the nation toward its defeated foes, even in the heat of passion and flush of victory, and had the rebels only manifested a temper correspondingly reasonable, as, indeed, was very natural to be expected after such chastisement, there could have been no further difficulty. The South evidently had no statesmen, else so plain a problem would not continue to be so bungled. For it should be clear that no class, once set free, can long remain disfranchised; and as they ought to have forestalled their foes in giving free labor to that class in war, so afterward common sense ought to have prompted at least the later prudence of making allies in in those of the [illegible] with whom they are bound henceforth to live. Instead, however, it appeared certain the rebels had learned nothing from experience, and would, in fact, drive their only chance into unfriendly habits. The safety of the public peace and of the private rights of Union men in the South still requires the mediation of sufficient military force, and if called upon to give his testimony, it should be that the United States troops ought not to be removed from the South."

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE STATE

TUESDAY MORNING, AUGUST 21 1866.

The New Platform

The platform laid down the other day at Philadelphia by the "new party" of Copperheads and Rebels is about as diversified in its character as were the various elements that composed the Convention. It throws a sop to all the factions which are expected to combine for the overthrow of the Union party of the country. It states a few propositions which nobody disputes, and then claims on behalf of its framers an exclusive pro prietorship in the principles thus laid down. It was evidently framed so as to include as many as possible of the principles enunciated in the proposed Reconstruction Amendment, and yet to omit enough of them to unite the rebel and Copperhead vote against the great leading measure of Congress. To hold the Doolittle and Randall bolters to the work, it repudiates the rebel war debt, makes the important announcement that slavery is abolished, and declares that the freedmen must be protected in their persons and property. This last clause was probably inserted as a commendation of Johnson's numerous vetoes and in praise of his generous policy of "protection" which has been so signally illustrated at Memphis and New Orleans. The startling announcement is further made that no State can secede from the Union. It is well that those who composed the Convention have succeeded in making this important discovery. In fact, it is really a thing to rejoice at. But the rebel portion of the Convention, when it conceded this point, demanded that it should be balanced by the declaration that no State can be excluded—which is equivalent with them to saying that the leaders of the rebellion cannot be kept out of Congress. To mollify them still further it is declared that the right of representation—that is to say the right to send Confederate Generals and Congressmen to the Congress of the United States—cannot be denied by the national legislature. This proposition, like those of most Democratic Conventions, is happily susceptible of two interpretations. In the North, wherever advocated, it is to be followed by the condition that the representatives sent by the South shall be loyal,—a condition which shall further imply that they must be men who took no part in the rebellion. In the South it will be construed as requiring the repeal of the test oath so that those who distinguished themselves in the service of treason may be rewarded therefor with seats in Congress. The Convention pronounces for many of the principles which are advocated by the "Radicals," and states none which the "Radicals" oppose. It embodies ideas in its platform which it is opposed to when presented in the form of a constitutional amendment. Certain measures will serve very well to announce in a party platform, as in this shape they bind nobody; but when enacted as a part of the organic law of the land, they are quite different in the obligations they impose.

A principal feature of the Reconstruction Amendment is that which contemplates a just equalization, North and South, of representation in Congress. This, in fact, is the most valuable provision in the proposed amendment. The principle it contends for is probably the most important one now in issue in our politics. The declaration of principles made at Philadelphia, ignores this momentous question. The Convention dared not pronounce in direct terms against a measure so entirely just, and it had no disposition to pronounce for it. The success of the [illegible] party would be the defeat of the principle that political power ought to be equally distributed among the political people of the country. It would be tantamount to saying that a citizen of Mississippi must continue to wield twice the power in Congress of a citizen of Illinois. In making up their verdict, the people of the North will not forget this important difference between the great principle to be established by the Reconstruction Amendment, and that inequality of representation which the "new party" asks them to submit to.

Gen. Grant's recent order is severely criticised by the Southern papers, and he is accused of "dubious flirtations with the Radicals."

OUR SAN FRANCISCO DISPATCH.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 19.—The eastern line was out of order last night, but is working to-day. Received no eastern news.

The [illegible] Portland last [illegible]

The U. S. sloop of war St. Mary, fifty-six days from Panama, arrived yesterday.

The number of deaths in this city last week were 51.

Coroner Harris has empanelled a jury and [illegible] from twenty to thirty witnesses in the matter of the falling of the Summer Street House. He will commence hearing the testimony Monday at 1 o'clock P. M., and will endeavor to sift the matter to the bottom, so that no doubt can exist as to the cause of the disaster and the party or parties on whom the responsibility should rest. To-day the funerals of all the victims of the [illegible] disaster took place. A very deep feeling has been awakened on the subject.

Two smart little shocks of earthquake were felt at ten minutes of one this morning.

The steamer Active left for Victoria at 4 P. M. yesterday. Weather clear and cool.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 20.—The suit of Isaac Wilkinson vs. John Parrott, is on trial in the Fourth District Court before a jury. The action is brought to recover $3,000 damages for injuries alleged to have been received by plaintiff's child, from having been bitten by a savage dog belonging to defendant.

The Duane brothers were brought before Judge Pratt this morning, and their motion for a separate trial granted. The trial of Chas P. Duane was set for the 30th inst.

Judge Dwinelle, this morning, granted Mary Maloney a divorce from her husband, Wm. Maloney, on account of [illegible].

Jno. J. Schneider was discharged from his debts this morning by a decree of the county court.

Coroner Harris is holding an inquest in the police court this P. M., on the body of Jno. Brewster, who was killed by the falling of the Summer street house. The verdict which the jury may render, will apply to all victims of said disaster.

The case of John Campbell, convicted of manslaughter in the killing of Anthony Hardgrove, will be retried in the 12th district court on Thursday next.

The case of Ferdinand Florine, indicted for manslaughter for the killing of Juan Tygierian, has been transferred to the 4th district court.

About three o'clock this morning, a serious affray occurred on the corner of Vallejo and Dupont streets, in which James Miller, Mat. Brady and a man named Rogers were cut and seriously injured. The statement of the injured parties with the exception of Miller who is unable to tell his story is as follows. The above mentioned men, Dr. Boyle, Brady and Rogers, were [illegible] the corner when they met Miller who, having an altercation with some Italians, and stepped across to see what was going on. As soon as they reached the street Miller and the Italians came to blows, when they interfered and the Italians drew their revolvers and used them freely, and having wounded all but Dr. Boyle, fled from the scene. Miller was stabbed in the shoulder by a knife glancing downward and entering the lungs, inflicting a wound it is feared may prove fatal. He is now lying at the County Hospital in a low condition. Brady was stabbed in the abdomen, neck and arm, but his wounds are not of a serious character. Rogers was cut in the face and severely beaten and bruised about the head. Brady is the steward of Washington Hose Company, of which Rogers is also a member. Who the Italians were and what was the origin of the difficulty between them and Miller is not known. The police have no clue to the assassins.

[DISPATCHES TO THE OREGONIAN.]

DATES TO AUGUST 18.

Visit of Delegates to the President.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18.—The Committee appointed by the Philadelphia Convention with such other delegates as were in the city attended the White House at noon today, and were received by President Johnson in the East room. The President was attended by General Grant, Secretary Welles, Secretary McCulloch, Postmaster Randall, Browning and about a dozen ladies. Reverdy Johnson addressed the President on behalf of the Committee giving him an official copy of the proceedings of the Convention congratulating him on his administration and the hopeful auguries for the future. The President replied that language was inadequate to express his feelings on the occasion. He said: In listening to the address which your eloquent and distinguished chairman has just delivered the proceedings of the Convention as they transpired recurred to my mind. Seemingly, I partook of the inspiration that prevailed in the Convention when I received a dispatch from two of its distinguished members conveying in terms the scene which has just been described of South Carolina and Massachusetts arm in arm walking into that vast assemblage and thus giving evidence that extremes had come together and that for the future they were united as they had been in the past for the preservation of the Union. When that dispatch informed me that in that vast body of men, distinguished for intellect and wisdom every eye was suffused with tears on beholding the scene, I could not finish reading the dispatch to an associate with me in the office for my feelings overcame me. I think we may justly conclude we are moving under proper inspiration and that we need not be mistaken, that the finger of an overruling and unerring Providence is in this matter. The nation is in peril although we have just passed through a mighty bloody and momentous ordeal, yet we do not find ourselves free from the difficulties and dangers that at first surrounded us. While our brave men performed their duties both officers and men, (turning to General Grant who stood at his right) while they have won laurels imperishable, there are still greater and more important duties to perform. While we have had their co-operation in the field we now need their support in our efforts to perpetuate peace. So far as the Executive Department of the Government is concerned, the effort has been made to pour oil into the wounds which were consequent upon the struggle and to use a common phrase, to prepare as the learned and wise physician would, a plaster healing in character and co-extensive with wound. (Loud cheers.) We thought, and yet think, that we have partially succeeded but as the work progressed and as reconstruction seemed to be taking place, and the country becoming united, we found a disturbing and warring element opposing us. In alluding to that element, I shall go no further than did your Convention and distinguished gentlemen who have delivered to me the report of its proceedings. I shall make no reference to it that I do not believe time and events will justify me. We have witnessed in one department of Government every effort as it were, to prevent restoration of peace and harmony. There is on the verge of the Government as it were, a body which has assumed to be the Congress of the United States, but is in fact a Congress of only part of the States. We have seen this Congress assume and pretend to be for the Union, when its every step and act is to perpetuate disunion and make the destruction of States inevitable. Instead of promoting reconstruction and harmony, its legislation has taken the form of retaliation, and this has been the course and policy of one department of your Government. The humble individual who is now addressing you stands the representative of another department of Government. The manner in which he was called upon to occupy that position, I shall not allude to now, suffice it to say he is here under the Constitution, and being here by virtue of its provisions he takes his stand upon the charter of our liberties as the rampart of civil and religious liberty. [Cheers.] Having been taught in my youth to hold it sacred, and having practiced upon it during my whole public career, I shall ever continue to reverence that Constitution, the Constitution of the Fathers of our country, and to make it my guide. [Cheers.] I know it has been said—and I must be permitted to indulge in the remark—that the Executive department of Government has been tyrannical. Let me ask this audience of distinguished gentlemen around me to-day, to point to a vote I ever gave, to a speech I ever made, to a single act of my whole public life that has not been against tyranny and despotism. As to the elements of my nature and pursuits of my life, they have not made me either in feeling or in my practice aggressive. On the contrary, my position is rather on the defensive in its character, but I would say that, having taken my stand upon the broad principles of liberty and the Constitution, there is not power enough on earth to drive me from it. [Prolonged cheering.] Having placed myself upon that broad platform, I have not been awed, dismayed or intimidated by either threats or encroachments, but have stood there in conjunction with patriotic spirits sounding the tocsin of alarm whenever I deemed the citadel of liberty in danger. I said on a previous occasion and repeat now that all that was necessary in that great struggle against tyranny and despotism was that struggle should be sufficiently audible for the American people to hear and properly understand. They did hear, and looking on and seeing who the contestants were, and what that struggle was about, they determined they would settle this question on the side of the Constitution and of principle. [Cries of "That's so," and applause.] I proclaim here to-day, as I have on other occasions that my faith is abiding in the people. In the darkest hour of the struggle, when the clouds seemed most lowering, my faith, instead of giving way, looked up through the darkness and far beyond, and saw that all would be safe in the end. My countrymen, we all know that in the language of Thomas Jefferson tyranny and despotism even can be used and exerted more effectually by the many than by the one. We have seen a Congress gradually encroach step by step upon constitutional rights and violate daily and monthly the fundamental principles of government; we have seen a Congress that seemed to forget there was a Constitution, and that there was a limit to the power and scope of legislation; we have seen a Congress in a minority assume to exercise the power which, if allowed to be carried out, would result in despotism or monarchy itself. [Cries of "That's so," and enthusiastic cheers.] This is truth. Because others, as well as myself, have seen proper to appeal to the patriotic and republican masses of the country, we have been denounced in most severe terms. Slander upon slander, vituperation upon vituperation of the most villainous character has made its way through the public press. What, gentlemen, has been your and my sin, what has been the cause of your offending? I will tell you: Daring to stand by the Constitution of our fathers. (The President here approached the spot where Senator Johnson was standing and said.) I consider the proceedings of this Convention, sir, as more important than those of any Convention that ever assembled in the United States. When I look with my mind's eye upon that collection of citizens coming together voluntarily and sitting in council with ideas, with principles and with views commensurate with all the States, and co-extensive with the whole people, and contrast it with the collection of gentlemen who are trying to destroy the country, I regard it as of more importance than any Convention that has sat at least since 1776. (Cheers.) I think that I may say that the declaration made there is equal to the Declaration of Independence. As I stand here to-day I pronounce it a second Declaration of Independence. Your progress and declarations are nothing more or less than a reaffirmation of the Constitution of the United States. Yes, I will go further, and say that the declaration you have made, that the principles you have enunciated in your address, are a second proclamation of emancipation to the people of the United States. For in proclaiming and reproclaiming these great truths, you have laid down a constitutional platform upon which all can make common cause and stand together for the restoration of the States and the preservation of the Government, without reference to party. The question only is the salvation of the country, for our country rises above all party considerations. [illegible] How many are there in the United States that require to be free, that bear the shackles upon their limbs and are bound as rigidly as though they were in fact in slavery? I repeat, then, that your declaration is the second proclamation of emancipation to the people of the United States, and offers common ground upon which all patriots can stand. Mr Chairman and gentlemen, let me in this Convention ask you who has done more for the advancement of the public welfare than I? I am as much opposed to indulgence of egotism as any one, but here in a conversational manner, while formally receiving the proceedings of this Convention I may be permitted to ask what have I to gain within the range of human ambition more than I have gained? My race is nearly run. I have been placed in the highest office which I can occupy under the Constitution, and I may say have held almost every position, from the lowest to the highest, which man can attain in our Government. I have passed through every position from the alderman of a village to the Presidency, and surely, gentlemen, this should be enough to satisfy a reasonable ambition. If I wanted office or wished to perpetuate my own power, how easy it would have been to hold and wield that which was placed in my hands by the measure called the freedmen's bureau. [Laughter and applause.] With the army which it placed at my disposal, I could have remained at the capitol of the United States, and with its fifty or sixty millions dollars of appropriation at my disposal with the machinery to be worked by my own hands, with my satraps and dependants in every town and village, and with the civil rights bill following as an auxiliary in connection with all the other appliances of the Government, I could have proclaimed myself dictator. [Cries of that's true, and three cheers for the President.] But, gentlemen, my pride and my ambition has been to occupy that position which retains all power in the hands of the people. It is upon that I have always relied. It is upon that I now rely. [A voice, and the people will not disappoint you.] And I repeat, that neither the threats nor the jeers of Congress nor of a calumniating press can drive me from my purpose. I acknowledge no superior except my God, the author of my existence and the people of the United States. For the one I try to obey all His commands as best I can, compatible with my poor humanity. For the other, in a political and representative sense, the high behests of the people have always been respected and obeyed by me.

Mr Chairman, I have said more than I intended. For the kind allusions to myself contained in your address and the resolutions adopted by the Convention, let me remark that in this crisis, and at this period of my public life I hold above all price and shall ever recur with feelings of profound gratification to the last resolution containing the endorsement of the Convention emanating spontaneously from the great mass of the people. I hope that my future action may be such that you and the Convention may not regret the opinions you have expressed of me. Before parting my friends one and all, Committee and strangers please accept my thanks for the kind manifestations of regard and respect you have exhibited on this occasion. I hope I shall always continue to be guided by firm and conscientious convictions of duty, and that always gives courage under the Constitution, which I make my guide.

At the conclusion of the President's remarks three cheers were given for Andrew Johnson and three more for Gen. Grant. The President and Gen Grant then retired arm in arm and the Committee and audience commenced to disperse.

Address by the Philadelphia Convention.

To the people of the United States: Having met in convention at the city of Philadelphia, in the State of Pennsylvania, this 14th day of August, 1866, as representatives of the people in all sections and from all the States and territories of the Union, to consult upon the condition and wants of the country, we address to you this declaration of our principles and of the political purposes we seek to promote. Since the meeting of the last National Convention in the year 1860, events have occurred which have changed the character of our country and given the United States a new place among those of earth. Our Government has passed through the vicissitudes and perils of civil war, a war which, though mainly sectional in its character, has, nevertheless decided the political difference that from the very beginning of the Government had threatened the unity of our national existence, and has left its impress deep and ineffaceable upon all the interests, sentiments and destiny of the Republic. While it has inflicted upon the whole country severe losses in life and property, and imposed burdens which must weigh on its resources for generations to come, it has developed a degree of national courage in the presence of national danger, capacity for military organization, achievement [illegible] which must confirm the [illegible] of the Republic [illegible] world [illegible] passions and test the [illegible] tions, this war has given a new scope to the ambition of political parties and a fresh impulse to plans of innovation and reform. Amidst the chaos of conflicting [illegible] heart is keenly alive to the passions that sway [illegible] judgment and affect public action [illegible] of war are still fresh in [illegible] ture take [illegible] proportion from men [illegible] ments of the past. It is a difficult but imperative duty which on your behalf we who are [illegible] and rise to perform. For the first time after six long years of alienation and conflict we have come together from every State and every section of the land as citizens of a common country, under the flag which is again the symbol of common glory, to consult together how best to cement and perpetuate the Union which is again the object of our common love, and thus to secure the blessings of liberty to ourselves and to our posterity. In the first place we invoke you to remember always and everywhere that the war is ended and the nation is again at peace. The shock of contending armies no longer assails the [illegible] heart of the republic. Insurrection against the supreme authority of the nation has been suppressed, and that authority again acknowledged by word and act in every State and by every citizen within its jurisdiction. We are no longer required or permitted to regard and treat each other as enemies. Not only have acts of war been discontinued and the weapons of war laid aside, but the state of war no longer exists, and the sentiments, passions and relations of war have no longer lawful or rightful place anywhere throughout our broad domain. We are again people of the United States, fellow citizens of one country, bound by the same duties and obligations of common patriotism, being neither rights nor interests apart from a common government. The duties that devolve upon us now are again the duties of peace and no longer the duties of war. We have assembled here to take counsel concerning the interests of peace, to decide how we may most wisely and effectually heal the wounds war has made, perfect and perpetuate the benefits it has secured and blessings which under a wise and benign Providence have sprung up in its fiery tread. This is the work not of passion but of calm, sober judgment, not of resentment of past offenses beyond the limits which justice and reason prescribe, but of liberal statesmanship which tolerates what it cannot prevent, builds its plans and hopes for the future rather upon a community of interest than upon distrust and the weapons of force. In the second place we call upon you to recognize in their full and [illegible] all the [illegible] with all their legitimate consequences the political results of the war just closed, in two most important particulars. The victory achieved by the National Government has been full and decisive. It has established beyond controversy by the highest of all human sanctions absolute supremacy of the National Government as defined and limited by the Constitution, the permanent integrity and indestructibleness of the National Union as a necessary consequence, and also it has put an end finally and forever to slavery upon the soil or within the jurisdiction of the United States. Both these points became directly involved in contest and the controversy both were ended absolutely by the results. In the third place, we deem it of the utmost importance that the real character of the war and the victory by which it was closed, should be accurately understood. The war carried on by the Government in the maintenance of its own authority in defense of its own existence, both of which were menaced by the insurrection which it sought to suppress. The suppression of that insurrection accomplished that result. The Government of the United States maintained by force of arms supreme authority over all the territory and over States and people within its jurisdiction, which the Constitution confers, but it acquires thereby no new power either of territorial possession or civil authority which it did not possess before the rebellion. All the rightful power it can possess, is that conferred either in express terms or by the fairest necessary implication by the Constitution. It was that power and that authority which this rebellion sought to overthrow. The victory of Federal arms was simply the defeat of that attempt. The Government then, acted on the defensive. It sought only to hold possession of what was its own. Neither the war nor victory changed the Constitution. The war was carried on by virtue of its provisions, and under the limitations which they prescribe. The result of the war did not enlarge, abridge or change or affect the powers or release the Government from restrictions which were imposed by the Constitution. It is to-day as it was before the war, the supreme law of the land, the constitution or laws of any State to the contrary notwithstanding and all power not conferred by the Constitution upon the General Government nor prohibited by it to the States, are reserved to the several States. This position is vindicated not only by the substantial nature of our Government and the language and spirit of the Constitution, but by all its acts in its several departments and at all times from the outbreak of the rebellion to its close. In every message and proclamation of the Executive it was expressly declared that the object of the war was to maintain the authority of the Constitution and preserve the Union, and Congress more than once reiterated this solemn declaration, and added the assurance that, whenever this object was attained war should cease and all the States should retain their equal rights and dignity unimpaired. It is only since the war has closed and our rights have been [illegible] on behalf of one department of the General Government, that it has been proclaimed by Congress that in addition to the powers conferred upon it by the Constitution, the Federal Government may now claim over States, the territory and people involved in insurrection, the rights of war, the right of conquest and confiscation, the right to abrogate all existing governments in States and territories, to subject the territory conquered to such laws, regulations and deprivations as the legislative department of Government may see fit to impose. Under this sweeping claim, that clause of the Constitution providing that no State shall, without its consent, be deprived of equal suffrage in the Senate of the United States, has been annulled, and ten States have been refused representation in Congress, and the Congress in which only a part of the States and people are represented has asserted the right thus to exclude the rest from representation and from all share in making their own laws or choosing their own rulers, until they comply with such conditions and perform such acts as this Congress thus composed may prescribe. That right has not only been asserted but exercised and practically enforced.

Nor does it find any support in the theory that the States thus excluded are in rebellion and therefore precluded from sharing the authority of Government. They are not thus rebellious. They are in an attitude of loyalty to the Government and have sworn allegiance to the Constitution. In no one of them is there the slightest indication of resistance of the Government or protest against its just and binding obligations. This condition of loyalty has been effectually recognized by the proclamation of the President. The laws of the United States have been extended by Congress over these States. The Federal Courts have been reopened. Federal taxes have been levied, and in every respect except that they are denied representation, the States are recognized as holding the same position, owing the same obligations, subject to the same duties as other States. It seems to us in the exercise of most calm and most candid judgment we can bring to the subject, that claim, so enforced, involves as fatal an overthrow of the authority of the Government and Union as that sought to be effected by the States in armed insurrection. But it cannot be said that the power thus asserted to exclude certain States from representation is made to rest wholly on the will and discretion of the Congress that asserts it. It is not made to depend upon any specified conditions nor subject to any rules or regulations of service. The right asserted and exercised is absolute without qualification or restriction, and is not confined to States in rebellion nor to States that have rebelled. It is not the right of any Congress in formal possession of its legislative authority to exclude any State or States and any portion of people thereof at any time from representation in Congress and the electoral college at its own discretion, and until they shall perform such acts and comply with such conditions as it may dictate. The reasons for such exclusion being wholly without discretion, Congress may change them as Congress itself may change. One Congress may exclude a State from all share of the Government for one reason, and that removed the next Congress may exclude it for another one. A State may be excluded on one ground to-day and on another to-morrow. Northern majority may exclude Southern States from one Congress, Western or North-Western or both combined may exclude the Northern or Eastern from the next Congress. Improbable as such an assertion may seem to be, the establishment of the principle now asserted and acted upon will render them by no means impossible. The character, and, indeed, the very existence of Congress and the Union is thus made dependent solely and entirely on the party and the sectional exigencies of the hour. We need not stop to show that such action not only finds no antecedent in the Constitution, but is at war with every principle of our Government and with the very existence of free institutions. It is the identical practice which has rendered fruitless all attempts hitherto made to establish and maintain free governments in Mexico and the States of South America. Party necessities assert themselves as superior to the fundamental law, which is set aside in reckless disobedience to their behests. Stability, whether in the exercise of power in the administration of the Government or in the enjoyment of rights, becomes impossible, conflicts of party which under a constitutional government are means of political progress, are merged in conflicts of arms to which they directly or inevitably tend. It was against this peril as conspicuous and as fatal to all free governments that our Constitution was intended especially to provide. Not only States, but the very existence of Government, is made by its provisions to depend on the right and fact of representation. The Congress upon which is conferred all the legislative power of the national Government, consists of two branches—Senate and House of Representatives—whose joint concurrence is essential to the validity of any law. Of these the House of Representatives (see Constitution Art 1, Sec 2) shall be composed of members chosen every second year by the people of the several States. Not only is the right of representation thus recognized as possessed by all the States and by every State without restriction, qualification or condition of any kind, but the duty of choosing is imposed on the people of each and every State alike, without distinctions or the authority to make distinctions among them for any reason or any grounds whatever. In the Senate so careful is the Constitution to secure to every State this right of representation it is expressly provided that no State shall without its consent be deprived of its equal suffrage in that body even by an amendment of the Constitution itself. When, therefore, any State is excluded from such representation, not only is a right of the State denied, but the constitutional integrity of the Senate is impaired and the validity of the Government itself brought in question. Congress at the present moment thus excludes from representation in both branches, ten States of the Union denying them all share in the enactment of laws by which they are to be governed and all participation in the election of rulers by whom these laws are to be enforced. In other words, a Congress in which only twenty six States are represented claims the right to govern absolutely all of the thirty-six States which compose the Union make laws, choose rulers, and exclude the other ten from all share in their own Government until it sees fit to admit them thereto. What is there to distinguish the power thus asserted and exercised from the most absolute and intolerable tyranny? Fourth, nor do these extravagant and unjust claims on the part of Congress to powers and authority never conferred upon the Government by the Constitution find any warrant in the arguments or excuses urged on their behalf. It is alleged, first, that these States, by the act of rebellion and by voluntarily withdrawing their members from Congress, forfeited their right of representation which they can only receive again at the hands of supreme legislative authority of the Government on its own terms, that is, at its own discretion. If representation in Congress and participation in the Government were simply privileges conferred and held by favor, this statement might have the merit of plausibility, but representation is, under the Constitution, not only expressly recognized as a right, but it is imposed as a duty, and it is essential in both respects to the existence of the Government and maintenance of authority in free Governments. Fundamental and essential rights cannot be forfeited except against individuals by due process of law, nor can Constitutional duties and obligations be discarded and set aside. The enjoyment of these rights may be for a time suspended, or by a failure to claim them and the duties may be evaded by a refusal to perform them. The withdrawal of their members from Congress by States which resisted the General Government was among the acts of insurrection, was one of the means and agencies by which they sought to impair the authority and defeat the action of the Government, and that act was annulled and rendered void when insurrection itself was suppressed. Neither the right of representation nor duty to be represented was in the least impaired by fact of insurrection, but it may have been that by reason of insurrection the conditions on which the enjoyment of that right and the performance of that duty for the time depended, could not be fulfilled. This was in fact the case. An insurgent power in exercise of usurped and unlawful authority had suspended within the territory under its control, that allegiance to Constitution and laws of the United States which is made by that fundamental law the essential condition of representation in this Government. No man within the insurgent States was allowed to take the oath to support the Constitution of the United States, and as a necessary consequence, no man could lawfully represent those States in the councils of the United States, but this was only an obstacle to the enjoyment of a right and to the discharge of a duty. It did not annul the one nor abrogate the other, and it ceased to exist when the usurpation by which it was created had been overthrown and States had again resumed their allegiance to the Constitution and laws of the United States. But it is asserted in support of the authority claimed by Congress, and in possession of power, that it flows directly from the laws of war; that it is among the rights which victorious war always confers upon the conquerors, and which the conqueror may exercise or waive at his own discretion. To this we reply that the laws of war relate solely and so far as the rights they confer are concerned, to wars waged between alien and independent nations, and can have no place or force in this regard in a war waged by a government to suppress insurrection of its own people upon its own soil against its authority. If we had carried on successful war against foreign nations, we might then have acquired possession and jurisdiction of their soil with the right to enforce our laws upon their people, and to impose upon them such laws and such obligations as we might choose; but we had before the war complete jurisdiction of the Southern States, limited only by our Constitution. Our laws were the only national laws in force. The Government of the United States was the only Government through which those States and their people had relations with foreign nations, and its flag was the only flag by which they were recognized anywhere on the face of the earth. In all these respects and in other respects, involving national interests and rights, our possession was perfect and complete. It did not need to be acquired, but only to be maintained and a victorious war against the rebellion could do nothing more than maintain it. It was called only to vindicate the disputed supremacy of the Constitution. It could neither enlarge nor diminish that authority which that Constitution confers upon the Government by which it was achieved. By such an enlargement or abridgement of the Constitution power can be effected only by an amendment of the Constitution itself, and such amendments can be made only in the modes which the Constitution itself prescribes. The claim that the suppression of insurrection against the Government gives additional power and authority to that Government especially, that it enlarges the jurisdiction of Congress and gives that body the right to exclude States from representation in the National Council, without which the Nation can have no authority and no existence, seems to us at variance alike with the principles of the Constitution and with the public safety. It is alleged that in certain particulars the Constitution of the United States fails to secure that absolute justice and impartial equality which the principles of the Government require; that it was in this respect the result of compromises and concessions to which, however, necessary when the Constitution was formed, we are no longer compelled to submit, and that now having the power through successful war, and just warrant for its exercise in the hostile conduct of the insurgent section, the actual Government of the United States may impose its own conditions and make the Constitution conform in all its provisions to its own ideas of equality and the rights of man."

The above is evidently not all of the address, but it is all we have received up to 4 o'clock to-day.

PORTLAND, ME., July 12th, 1866.

Messrs. TILTON & MCFARLAND,
110 Sudbury Street, Boston.

Dear Sir—We take great pleasure in informing you that the BURGLAR PROOF SAFE we purchased of you, came out of the conflagration of the 4th and 5th insts., with its contents entirely uninjured.

The Safe was exposed to an intense heat caused by the burning of a large quantity of sugar, and we consider suffered as severe a test as could well be devised for it. It contained a large quantity of valuable securities, which, as we have said, were entirely uninjured.

We shall wish you to make us another Safe on some future occasion. Yours truly,

J. B. BROWN & SONS.

PORTLAND, July 12, 1866.

Messrs. TILTON & MCFARLAND,
110 Sudbury Street, Boston.

Gentlemen: We are happy to inform you that the Safes we purchased of you a few months since, proved all your Agent recommended them to be. Our office was in Messrs J. B. Brown & Sons' building, on Commercial Street, which we had full of sugars, all of which was consumed. Both Safes fell into the cellars, remaining there some forty four hours, subject to the intense heat generated by so large an amount of sugar and material of the building, which was very large. We opened the safe on Saturday, the 7th inst., and found the contents in good condition. Some papers were injured in the drawers, also the bindings of the books, but every word and figure in them is perfect. The Burglar-Proof Safe, we think, can be repaired, but the large Fire-Proof is too much injured, and we shall soon give you an order for a new one, which we hope if tested will prove as valuable as those we have already tried. CHURCHILL, BROWNS & MANSON.

Our Agent at Portland, Me., under date of July 15th, states that he has the certificates of 17 different firms, who had our Safes in use, the contents of which came out fully preserved.

[illegible] —The recent advance in the price of mackerel [illegible] by the Bulletin, in its commercial [review], from which we quote: "The [receipts] [illegible] at this port from January 1st to [illegible] 3,920 half barrels and 15 128 kits against [illegible] and 29,938 kits for the same time last [year] [illegible] show an increase in favor of this [year of] [illegible] half barrels, and a decrease of 14,810 kits, or, [reducing] them all as kits, an actual decrease in the im[ports] this year of 10,971 kits. On the 1st inst, there was [on the way] to this port, according to the manifests re[illegible] the half barrels and 2,733 kits, against 1 216 half barrels and 8,412 kits for the same time last year, showing [a decrease] in the amount on the way this year of 765 [half barrels] and 5,674 kits, equal to a decrease of 6 0.4 [illegible] added to the decrease in the imports, ab[illegible] [illegible] this year in the receipts and the [amount] known to be on the way here of 17,605 kits [illegible], leaves the supply on hand here very lim[ited]. [illegible] efforts have been made of late to concen[trate] [illegible] and with considerable success, the [illegible] it now being in the hands of a very [few] [illegible]. In view of this condition of the market, [prices have] rapidly advanced; kits now being held at [illegible] at $9 25. About this time last year, [illegible] kits were sold at $1 75@2 00, [illegible] at $8 50@? As the season has long [since closed] at the East, no great quantities apart from [those on] the way, are expected here for some time to [come]; [illegible] prices, therefore, can be easily maintain[ed] [until] the new catch at the East come into market and [illegible] to this port."

[illegible] —The California Steam [Navigation Company's steam]ship Orizaba, Captain Wm [illegible], arrived at 2:25 A. M., yesterday. [illegible] from the 18th, at 7 30 A. M. [illegible] —A [illegible] small of [illegible] some[illegible] the soil of our State who, in days [illegible] the waves of time, to seek [illegible] of yesterday brought back to us [illegible] left the State three and five years ago [illegible]. After traveling over 50,000 miles [illegible] in Portland, to be satisfied with the [illegible] but the more pleased and better sat[isfied] [illegible] made during their [illegible] [illegible] to our wharf a large consign[ment] [illegible] marked "R. B. & Co.," which we [illegible] belongs to our old friend H. B. [illegible]. Mr. R., it will be recollected, was [illegible] the firm of A. Cohn & Co., who [illegible] in this city. We are pleased to [illegible] corner of Pine and Front streets, [illegible] numerous friends thro[ugh] the inte[rior].

[illegible] —A cotemporary, in refer[ring to the] movement being made in the [illegible] Pacific coast, pays a tribute to the [illegible] is just now finding an important item [illegible] of Oregon, and says: "The [illegible] is likely to be found in a very [illegible] and [illegible] of home manufacture will [illegible] and these will be [illegible] it is better and cheap[er] [illegible] for a dozen or more [illegible] in Oregon, and those which estab[lish] [illegible] here, as the [illegible] to grind our wheat into flour

[illegible] —The market was abundantly [supplied] with fruit from California yesterday, upon the arrival of the [Orizaba]. Vegetables are not [illegible] in [illegible] at present from our sister State, as [we have] much better and fresher quality at home. The [illegible] fruit were very low in San Fr[ancisco] [illegible], in consequence of the abundance. Fine [illegible] selling at from three to five cents per pound [illegible] of quite a number of varieties at from two to eight cents, and plums of almost all kinds from three to five cents per [pound].

[illegible] among the [illegible], leaving for Vic[toria] [illegible] was one gentleman who remarked to [illegible] all he had in this world was invested at Vic[toria] [illegible] "If any man will give 25 per cent [illegible] I will invest in Portland, and take the [illegible]." One year ago, and for that matter, but last [illegible], it was apparent in the [illegible] that San [illegible] interest in pushing Victoria, and do[illegible] than she did in attention to legitimate [illegible] Portland is now, altogether, able to [illegible], and we venture [illegible] it was [illegible] to take a [illegible] could not be found in our city one [illegible] willing to take even an advance of [illegible] per [illegible] of real property he may own [illegible].

[illegible] in the three steam[ers] [illegible] regularly in the line of travel [illegible] between San [Francisco and Portland], we are advised that the bark [illegible], with a full cargo, has left for this port [illegible]. The [illegible], Capt. Conner of the Califor[nia], Oregon and Mexican Line, will leave for this port to-day, and on [illegible] the steamship Californ[ia], an [illegible] of the [illegible] Steam Navigation Company, will leave [illegible] the steamship Montana of the Ancher Line. Thus [illegible] four steamships and one bark [illegible] to fill the immediate [illegible] of this port and [illegible].

[illegible] —Mr. Putnam Smith, of [illegible] & Fox, on Front street, has [illegible] "Basin" [illegible], taken [illegible] Street & Co., recently, mention of which has [illegible] made. It is valued at $700. [illegible] and is nearly pure gold—[illegible] a half ounce of quartz. It was taken from a bank, at which the company were [illegible] the specimen to [illegible] what it really is, a sample of the dig[gings] [illegible]. Call and see it.

[illegible] —The ostentatious dis[patch] of [illegible], to the sufferers at P[ortland], Me., after the very distructive fire of July [illegible] of a great deal of fun among the [illegible]. The following is from the Healdsburg [illegible]: "When the news of the Portland (Maine) [fire] was received in San Francisco, the Mayor [telegraphed] "Do you want any help?" The Mayor of P[ortland replied] [illegible] San Francisco says "We [illegible]

[illegible] —We are informed that the furniture and [illegible] from one of the leading restaurants of Victoria are [illegible] to this city. Since the burst of "the bubble" there are fewer people in the "free port" to be fed. A large Billiard Saloon is also to be [illegible] to Portland, and the owner only regrets that he cannot [illegible] the building into our corporation as eas[ily]. These are apparent "signs of the [times]" [illegible] He who boast most and [illegible] Wet-Foot!

[illegible] to note an improvement in [illegible] for flour by our Victoria neighbors. The [illegible] last evening took the following cargo: Flour, 1,130 sacks; Wheat, 57 sacks, about four tons; Butter, 11 bbls and 15 half barrels; Almonds, 3 barrels; [illegible] Apples, 45 boxes. Merchandise, 6 [illegible]

[illegible] —Messrs. Perry & Co, of this city, [contractors] for constructing the new trotting park at the White [House], have finished removing the [illegible] in the way. In seven days they removed twenty large [stumps], on the line of the course, which is equal to ten [illegible] per day. They used Crawford's stump extractor, sold by Parrish & Atkinson, and recommend them to all. See advertisement.

[illegible] —John Murphy, a stranger in this part of the [country], was [illegible] day [illegible] insane, and for his safety, care and treatment has been provided for at the [illegible] of Messrs Hawthorn & Loryea, at East Portland.

[illegible] —The certificates of parties who were burned out in the [illegible] Portland conflagration, appear in our col[umns] [illegible] also done them by the Til[lman] [illegible] safes. Messrs Frieiman & Co., corner of Front and Stark streets, are agents.

STATE ITEMS.

The sash and door factory at Buena Vista was destroyed by fire on the 7th inst. It belonged to Mr Davis.

We are informed that the new steamer launched on Sucker Lake a few days ago is not owned by the P. T. Co., as we stated yesterday, but that she belongs to J. C. Trullinger & Co., of Oswego. Her name, we learn, is Minnehaha, instead of Lady of the Lake.

The issue of the 18th of the Albany Journal closes the history of that paper. Mr. Hendricks will publish in its stead the American Union at Salem the first number to appear on the [illegible]. This step is taken to [illegible] of the [illegible] Mr. M. [illegible] to the office of State Printer. The Journal has been always a staunch Union paper. The Union, under the same management, published at the seat of Government, will have a much wider field for usefulness and cannot well fail to be a complete success. We commend it to the Union men of the whole State.

Messrs Beach & Monteith, says the Albany Journal, now have their mill in most excellent order, and are making flour at a rapid rate. Since finishing last year's crop of wheat they have made many improvements in their mill—new bolting gear, wheat scales, etc.—and have now as good a mill as there is in the State. Their flour sells in the San Francisco market equal to the justly celebrated Standard Mills flour. They made their first shipment of flour last Tuesday. The mill is under the management of Mr. McClaren, who is known throughout the State as one of the most accomplished millwrights and machinists.

At Marysville, California, the people are about engaging in a Woolen Factory enterprise. In connection with the movement, a citizen of Marysville who has visited our factories at Salem and Oregon City furnishes an account of the enterprises which is highly flattering to Oregon. Of the Salem mills he says: "I found them engaged upon all kinds of woolen fabrics, from the best cassimeres, almost if not quite equal to the finest French article, down to the coarsest flannels and blankets. They turn out about thirty thousand yards per month of the different kinds of goods, and to do this they tax the capacity of the mill to its utmost, and are still not able to supply the demand which is continually increasing." The correspondent then speaks of the factory at Oregon City in the following terms: "At Oregon City, about forty miles below Salem, we find the falls of the Willamette river, furnishing ample water-power to almost run the machinery of the world, and here are located the Oregon City Mills, the most elegant and complete manufacturing establishment on the Pacific coast. I went over the place, and found that the same facts exist here as at Salem. Such is the demand for their goods that the hum of spindles and the click and clatter of the looms is never lost to the ear in that building, night and day, they run with the sole question asked, how fast can we turn out new goods! Yet they cannot supply the demand. Seeing that it was impossible to come anywhere near furnishing the market with their facilities, they have ordered entire new machinery from the East which they expect soon." The writer closes with this tribute to the enterprise of this State, "In all my trip through California and Oregon, taking into consideration her size and natural advantages, I must say, though it be with regret, that I have seen no town so dull, and to a business man aggravatingly quiet, as our own. Salem has not half the advantages that Marysville possesses today, yet it was but a word from her people and a blow from that big sledge Enterprise, and up went her splendid factory—all done and in running order in half the time we have been "wondering if it would pay!" and to-day she is reaping a bountiful golden harvest, the result of the energy and industry of her people."

Harmless as Summer Dew, yet in the highest degree disinfectant and preservative, Sozodont keeps the teeth always healthy and spotless, and the gums ruddy and free from canker.

A Clergyman, (Rev. E. J. McMurray), writing from Halifax, N. S., says: "Having suffered several years with throat affection, to which Clergymen are especially subject—and having used various remedies, I have pleasure in giving my testimony as to the relief I have had in the discharge of my Sabbath labors from the use of 'Brown's Bronchial Troches.' They have been a great comfort. Others to whom I have recommended them, have used them with advantage." For Coughs and Colds the Troches are equally efficacious.

DRY GOODS.

Meagher, Tully & Co., No. 9 Lick House, Montgomery street, will never get through selling their immense stock of dry goods, piled up in their retail store as above; so the ladies say. And why? We say, because they replenish their stock every day, from their wholesale house on Battery street, and increase their Battery street house from the New York house. That is why they can afford to sell goods so much cheaper than any other dry goods establishment in San Francisco. Packages of goods sold are sent home to the purchaser the same day, by their porters, who are kept busy on the run. Now, ladies you have the secret, why Meagher, Tully & Co sell so much and at such low prices. au20dtf

UTERINE CATHOLICON

If faithfully used according to directions will cure every case of Diabetes, and greatly mitigate the troublesome effects caused by a relaxation of the outlet of the bladder. It is a most successful remedy for Gravel and other diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, and for Female Diseases is unequaled. The Catholicon uniformly cures Prolapsus Uteri, Whites, all Irregularities of the Monthly Turns, Suppression, Incontinence of Urine, Bloating and Dropsical Swellings and all Diseases of Pregnancy. The specific action of this medicine is immediate and certain upon the Uterine and Abdominal Muscles and Ligaments, restoring them to as healthy a state as those of childhood and youth, so that patients who have used the Graefenberg Company's Uterine Catholicon cannot sufficiently express their gratitude for the relief afforded. S T.—1860—X.

Persons of sedentary habits troubled with weakness, lassitude, palpitation of the heart, lack of appetite, distress after eating, torpid liver, constipation, &c., deserve to suffer if they will not try the celebrated

PLANTATION BITTERS,

Which are now recommended by the highest medical authorities, and warranted to produce an immediate beneficial effect. They are exceedingly agreeable, perfectly pure, and must supercede all other tonics where a healthy, gentle stimulant is required.

They purify, strengthen and invigorate.
They create a healthy appetite.
They are an antidote to change of water and diet.
They overcome effects of dissipation and late hours.
They strengthen the system and enliven the mind.
They prevent miasmatic and intermittent fevers.
They purify the breath and acidity of the stomach.
They cure Dyspepsia and Constipation.
They cure Diarrhea and Cholera Morbus.
They cure Liver Complaint and Nervous Headache.

They make the weak strong, the languid brilliant, and are exhausted nature's great restorer. They are composed of the celebrated Calisaya bark, wintergreen, sassafras, roots and herbs, all preserved in perfectly pure St. Croix rum. For particulars, see circulars and testimonials around each bottle.

Beware of impostors. Examine every bottle. See that it has our private U. S. Stamp unmutilated over the cork, with plantation scene, and our signature on a fine steel plate side label. See that our bottle is not refilled with spurious and deleterious stuff. Any person pretending to sell Plantation Bitters by the gallon or in Bulk, is an impostor. Any person imitating this bottle, or selling any other material therein, whether called Plantation Bitters or not, is a criminal under the U. S. Law, and will be so prosecuted by us. We already have our eye on several parties re-filling our bottles, &c., who will succeed in getting themselves into close quarters. The demand for Drake's Plantation Bitters from ladies, clergymen, merchants, &c., is incredible. The simple trial of a bottle is the evidence we present of their worth and superiority. They are sold by all respectable druggists, grocers, physicians, hotels, saloons, steamboats and country stores.

The undersigned, who has always enjoyed public confidence for the excellent quality of his Coffee, neglects nothing to justify the good name acquired by his productions, the sale of which daily increases. The acknowledged superiority of his merchandise, which commands here, and in the markets of the interior, a relatively higher price, excites the cupidity of some manufacturers, and every day he sees increasing the number of those who, by counterfeit or imitation of his mark, seek to deceive the public, palming upon them their inferior productions for the genuine G. VENARD CHARTRES COFFEE. This fraud can deceive nobody after a trial, but only adds to the favorable opinion of the consumers, the very flattering though unwilling testimony of the counterfeiters. Nevertheless, buyers should be forewarned, and placed on their guard against this practice.

The War in Europe

THE BATTLE OF SADOWA—TERRIBLE CARNAGE AND UTTER ROUT OF THE AUSTRIANS

The military correspondent of the London Times at Prussian headquarters gives the fullest and clearest account of the battle of Sadowa that has yet been published We copy the principal passages

OPENING OF THE BATTLE.

The first shot was fired about half past seven The Prussian Horse Artillery, close down to the river replied to the Austrian guns but neither side fired heavily and for half an hour the cannonade consisted of but little more than single shots At a quarter before eight the King of Prussia arrived on the field, and very soon after the horse artillery were reinforced by other field batteries, and the Prussian gunners began firing their shells quickly into the Austrian position But as soon as the Prussian fire actively commenced Austrian guns seemed to appear as if by magic, in every point of the position, from every road, from every village, from the orchard of Mokrowens on the Prussian right, to the orchard of Benatek on their left, came flashes of fire and whizzing rifle shells, which, bursting with a sharp crack, sent their splinters rattling among the guns gunners, carriages and horses, often killing a man or horse, sometimes dismounting a gun, but always plowing up the earth and scattering the mud in the men's faces But the Austrians did not confine themselves to firing on the artillery alone for they threw their shells up the slope opposite to them towards Dub, and one shell came slap into a squadron of Uhlans who were close beside the King, burying itself with a heavy thud in the ground, it blew up columns of mud some 20 feet in the air, and, bursting a moment after, reduced the squadron by four files

FIERCE CANNONADE.

As soon as the cannonade in front became serious, the guns of the Seventh Division began to bombard the village of Benatek, on the Austrian right The Austrians returned shot for shot, and neither side either gained or lost ground. In the centre, too, the battle was very even, the Prussians pushed battery after battery into the action, and kept up a tremendous fire on the Austrian guns, but these returned it, and sometimes with interest, for the Austrian artillery officers knew their ground, and every shell fell true Many officers and men fell, and many horses were killed or wounded More Krankentragers were sent down to the batteries, and always returned carrying on stretchers men whose wounds had been hastily bound up under fire, but who seemed to be too much stunned to suffer much from pain

Gradually the Prussian cannonade appeared to get stronger, and the Austrian batteries between Dohelnitz and Dohalicka retired higher up the hill, but the guns at Mokrowens still stood fast, and the Prussians had not yet crossed the Bistritz, but many guns were now turned on Mokrowens, and at 10 o'clock the battery there was also obliged to retire a little.

FIGHTING AROUND THE VILLAGES.

While this cannonade had been going on, some of the infantry had been moved [illegible] towards the river, where they took shelter from the fire under a convenient undulation of ground The Eighth Division came down on the left hand side of the causeway, and under the cover of the rising in the ground, formed its columns for the attack on the village of Sadowa, while the Third, and Fourth Divisions, on the right hand side of the road, prepared to storm Dohelnitz and Mokrowens But a little before their preparations were complete, the village of Benatek, on the Austrians' right, caught fire, and the Seventh Division made a dash to secure it, but the Austrians were not driven out by the flames, and here, for the first time in the battle, was there hand to hand fighting The Twenty-seventh regiment led the attack, and rushed into the orchards of the village, the burning houses separated the combatants, they poured volley after volley at each other through the flames; but the Prussians found means to get round the burning houses, and taking the defenders in reverse, forced them to retire with the loss of many prisoners

It was 10 o'clock when Prince Frederick Charles sent Gen Stulpnagel to order the attack on Sadowa, Dohelnitz and Mokrowens The columns advanced, covered by skirmishers, and reached the river bank without much loss, but from there they had to fight every inch of their way The Austrian infantry held the bridges and villages in force, and fired fast upon them as they approached. The Prussians could advance but slowly along the narrow ways and against the defenders of the houses, and the volleys sweeping through the ranks seemed to tear the soldiers down The Prussians fired much more quickly than their opponents, but they could not [illegible] the houses, trees and smoke [illegible] the Austrian discharges shrouded the village. Sheltered by this the Austrian Jagers fired blindly where they could tell, by hearing, that the enemy [illegible] were, and their shots told [illegible] on the Prussians in their close formations, but the latter improved their positions, although slowly, and by dint of sheer courage and perseverance, for they lost men at every yard of their advance, and in some places almost paved their way with wounded. Then, to help the infantry, the Prussian artillery turned its fire, regardless of the enemy's batteries, on the villages, and made tremendous havoc among the houses. Mokrowens and Dohelnitz both caught fire and the shells fell quickly and with fearful effect among the defenders of the flaming hamlets; the Austrian guns also played upon the advancing infantry, but at this time these were sheltered from their fire by the houses and trees between.

THE AUSTRIANS FLANKED.

In and around the villages the fighting continued for nearly an hour, then the Austrian infantry, who had been there driven out by a rush of the Prussians, retired, but only a little way up the slope into a line with their batteries The wood above Sadowa was strongly held, and that between Sadowa and Benatek was filled with riflemen, stood to bar the way of the Seventh Division But General Fransky, who commands this division, was not easily stopped, and he sent his infantry at the wood, and turned his artillery on the Austrian batteries. The Seventh Division began firing into the trees, but found they could not make any impression, for the defenders were concealed, and musketry fire was useless against them. Then Fransky let them go, and they dashed in with the bayonet. The Austrians would not retire, but waited for the struggle, and in the wood above Benatek was fought out one of the fiercest combats which the war has seen The 27th Prussian regiment went in nearly 3,000 strong, with 90 officers, and came out on the further side with only two officers and between 300 and 400 men standing; all the rest were killed or wounded. The other regiments of the division also suffered much, but in the same proportion, but the wood was carried The Austrian line was now driven in on both flanks, but its commander formed a new line of battle a little higher up the hill, round Lipa, still holding the wood which lies above Sadowa.

NEW AUSTRIAN POSITION.

Then the Prussian artillery [illegible] crossed the Bistritz, and began to fire up at the new Austrian position. At the same time the marks of General Herwarth's advance was [illegible] appearing toward the Austrian left, for he had at Nechanitz, a village about seven miles lower down the Bistritz than Sadowa, found a brigade of Saxon troops, with some Austrian cavalry, and was driving them towards the position at Lissa, himself following in such a direction that it appeared he would turn the Austrian left flank. But the Austrian commander seemed determined to hold his position, and heavy masses of infantry and cavalry could be seen on the upper part of the slope.

IN THE WOODS.

The Prussian infantry, which had taken the villages of Sadowa and Dobelnitz, was now sent against the wood, which, above these places, runs along the side of the Sadowa and Lissa road They advanced against it, but did not at first make much impression, for, the Austrians being here again concealed, the fire of the needle-gun did not tell, and a whole battery placed at the far end of the wood fired through the trees, and told on the Prussian ranks with awful effect. But the assailants fought on, at last broke down the obstacles at the entrance, and then dashed in The fighting continued from tree to tree, and the Austrians made madly a rush to recover the lost position of the wood, but in this close fighting their boyish troops went down like ninepins before the strong men of the Eighth Division; but when the defenders drew back a little and their artillery played into the trees, the Prussians suffered fearfully, and about half way up the wood the fight became stationary.

At this time the Austrian artillery were making splendid practice, and about one o'clock the whole battle line of the Prussians could gain no more ground and was obliged to fight hard to retain the position they had won At one time it seemed as if it would be lost for guns had been dismounted by the Austrian fire, and in the wooded ground the needle gun had no fair field and the infantry fight was very equal.

The Prince Frederick Charles sent the Fifth and Sixth Divisions forward They laid down their helmets and knapsacks on the ground, and advanced to the river The King was now near to Bistritz and the troops cheered him loudly as they marched into the battle. They went over the Sadowa bridge disappeared into the wood, and soon the increased noise of musketry told that they had begun to fight but the Austrian gunners sent salvo after salvo among them, and they did not push the battle forward more than a few hundred yards, for they fell back themselves and they could not reach the enemy Not only did the fragments of the shells fly about among them scattering death and awful gashes among their ranks but the portions of the trees, torn by the artillery fire flew thickly about—huge ragged splinters, that caused even more frightful wounds

ADVANCE OF THE CROWN PRINCE

Herwarth, too seemed checked upon the right The smoke of his musketry and artillery which had hitherto been pushing forward steadily stood still for a time Fransky's men cut to pieces could not be sent forward to attack the Sadowa wood or they would expose themselves to be taken in rear by the artillery on the right of the Austrian line formed in front of Lissa All the artillery was engaged except eight batteries, and these had to be retained in case of a reverse, for at one time the firing in the Sadowa wood, and of the Prussian artillery on the slope, seemed almost as if drawing back towards Bistritz. The First Army was certainly checked in its advance if not actually being pushed back

Then the Prussian commanders began to look anxiously to the left for the coming of the Crown Prince Some Austrian guns near Lissa were seen to be firing toward the Prussian left, and it was hoped they might be directed against the advanced guard of the Second Army, but at 3 o'clock there were no signs of Prussian columns advancing against Lissa. The generals became manifestly uneasy, and they drew the infantry out of the battle cavalry was also formed up, so that it would be available either for the pursuit of the Austrians or for retarding their pursuit and Gen Von Reitz himself went off to look for the Second Army But he soon returned and brought the intelligence that the Crown Prince was forming his attack on Lissa and that the guns on the Austrian right had been firing against his troops

Then the First Army took heart again The Sadowa wood was carried, and the battery beyond it was stormed by the Jagers At half past three the Crown Prince's columns were seen moving across the slope against Lissa, for his artillery had silenced the Austrians guns, and Herwarth was again pressing forward against the Austrian left In a quarter of an hour the Crown Prince's infantry were engaged at Lissa, and their quick volleys of musketry, rapidly advancing told that the Austrians were in full retreat. The First Army pushed forward at once, the artillery limbered up and galloped up the slope, coming into action on every opportunity to send its shells against the retreating battalions, the infantry emerging from the woods, formed and pressed at the double, Prince Frederick Charles put himself at the head of his regiment, and dashed over the Sadowa bridge and up the road, followed by all his light cavalry.

THE ROUT.

On gaining the top of the Lissa slopes the retreating battalions of the Austrians were seen running across a hollow in the ground which lies about two miles further south. The Prussian artillery halted on the summit of the Lissa hill and fired shells rapidly, which burst with terrible precision over the heads of the fugitives. The cavalry flew forward in pursuit, but the Prince, after leading a short way, had to go to superintend the general movement, for the Austrian batteries had taken post in the Streselitz ridge, and were firing heavily against the pursuing Prussians Then the cavalry got out of hand, and by small detachments rushed on the Austrian battalions, but these, though retreating fast, were not routed, and in many instances beat off the cavalry, who also suffered much from the Austrian artillery, for the shells burst repeatedly among the squadrons, and killed many men and horses But the Austrian guns were driven off their ridge by the heavier fire of the more numerous Prussian batteries, and then the pursuit was renewed.

THE PURSUIT.

Some of the retreating Austrians made for the fortress of Koniggratz others for Pardubitz, and troops were sent in pursuit along both roads. The wounded who were lying on the ground shrieked with fear when they saw the cavalry galloping down towards them, but Prince Frederick Charles took care that they should be avoided, and at one time checked the pursuit, in order to move his squadrons around, and not go through a patch of standing corn, where several wounded Austrians had taken refuge These, when they saw the lancers coming, thought they were going to be massacred, and cried piteously, waving white handkerchiefs as a sign of truce, but they had no cause to fear. Large numbers of prisoners were taken, for the pursuit was continued to the Elbe, and it was not till nine o'clock that all firing had ceased, but the main body of the army halted about seven.

SCENE ON THE FIELD.

As the Princes returned the battalions cheered them for their victory, but they left the pursuit of their enemies and the cheers of their own victorious troops to look after the hospital accommodations provided for the wounded These lay in immense numbers on the field The dead, too, laid thick, but all that they require will be done to-morrow Every cottage in the neighborhood that has not been burnt is full of wounded Austrians and Prussians lie side by side, but the Krankentrager are still out, and all will not be collected till late to-morrow morning. Conspicuous in the hospitals, working diligently in their voluntary labor, are the Knights of St John of Jerusalem This Order of Knighthood, renewed lately for the succor of the weak and suffering, has sent here a large hospital establishment, under the direction of Count Theodore Stolberg From the voluntary contributions of the knights, hospitals are maintained in the nearest towns and in the field, all necessary hospital stores are carried by the Order and means of transport accompany the army, hospital nurses are provided, and by their aid many wounded are carefully attended who could not be looked after by the ordinary arrangements

RESULTS.

The battle of Sadowa has been a great victory for the Prussian army, the troops fought with the most determined courage, they stood for hours under a terrible fire, for there are supposed to have been nearly 1,500 guns in action, of which 750 were Prussian The immediate cause of the victory was the Crown Prince's attack on the Austrian left flank, which turned the position, but the attack in front had great effect on the issue, as unless it had been steadily maintained, the Austrians might have repulsed the attack in flank

It is the opinion of the Prussian Generals that the Austrian retreat was most skillful, and that their artillery was most excellently handled

The number of troops engaged on the Prussian side was about 250,000. The Austrians are supposed to have had almost an equal number. No details have yet been received of the number of killed, wounded or prisoners

The London Times says that "the incidents of this battle make it clear that the greatest battle of the present age was won by the superior prowess of the victors, and was not the consequence of a merely mechanical advantage The needle-gun added, no doubt, to the completeness of the victory, but if the Prussians had possessed no such weapon, the spirit of their onset, and the skillful arrangements by which a part of their army was brought on to the flank and rear of the enemy, would have effectually dislodged the Austrians from their position"

IMMENSITY OF THE DOMESTIC SLAVE TRADE.—A gentleman intimately acquainted with Richmond, before and since the rebellion, informs the New York Independent that the slave traffic of that city amounted annually, for many years, to ten millions of dollars. One-fourth of this sum was net profit to the four hundred persons engaged in the inhuman business—a negro costing $700 generally bringing $1,000 Many of the finest houses and estates of the city were in the hands of these men and many "F F V's of the highest social standing were silent partners in the business They controlled the banks, and subsidized the pulpit, press, and politics of the State.

NOT TO BE SCARED.—A reckless radical Postmaster in Michigan, not having the fear of edicts from "Moses" before his eyes, and who so far forgot his allegiance to "A J" as to procure subscribers for General Carl Shurz's radical paper, received a letter from Aleck Randall, Chief of the Bread and Butter Brigade informing him that he "had been charged with using extra exertion in obtaining subscribers for the Detroit Post and also of using the word 'Copperhead'" The Postmaster writes to the Post that he may have sinned, but he does not feel guilty, and concludes thus 'Thanks to the Lord, we have 'bread and butter up this way that Randall cannot control."

STAFF OFFICERS.—The following announcement of staff officers is made by Gen Steele

Captain and Brevet Major Samuel A Foster, Commissary of Subsistence, U S A, as Chief Commissary.

1st Lieutenant and Brevet Captain L S Babbitt Ordnance Department, as Chief Ordnance Officer, Department of the Columbia

THE QUEEN'S DAUGHTER.—Queen Victoria remarked recently "Alice (her daughter) is ruined, for Hesse has ceased to exist I have written for her to come over here unless she does so there is nothing for her to do but to go to some cheap place in Switzerland and live as economically as she can "

The Remedy for Curing

CONSUMPTION, COUGHS, COLDS,

Asthma, Croup,

Diseases of the Throat, Bronchitis, Pains and Oppression of the Chest and Lungs, Difficult Breathing and all the Diseases of the Pulmonary Organs.

ITS ACTION IS EXPECTORANT, ALTERATIVE, SUDORIFIC, SEDATIVE, DIAPHORETIC AND DIURETIC, which renders it one of the most valuable remedies known for curing diseases of the lungs. It excites expectoration, and causes the lungs to throw off the phlegm or mucus; CHANGES THE SECRETIONS AND PURIFIES THE BLOOD heals the irritated parts, gives strength to the digestive organs, brings the liver to its proper action, and imparts strength to the whole system. Such is the immediate and satisfactory effect, that it is WARRANTED TO BREAK UP THE MOST DISTRESSING COUGH IN A FEW HOURS TIME, if not of too long standing IT IS WARRANTED to give entire satisfaction even in the MOST CONFIRMED CASES OF CONSUMPTION IT IS WARRANTED NOT to produce costiveness (which is the case with most remedies) or affect the head as it contains no Opium in any form IT IS WARRANTED TO BE PERFECTLY HARMLESS to the most delicate child, although it is an active and powerful remedy for restoring the system. THERE IS NO REAL NECESSITY FOR SO MANY DEATHS BY CONSUMPTION, when ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM will prevent it if only taken in time
